

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An installation and a method are disclosed for storing printed products in one or more layers. In the installation and the method, the printed products are stored on at least one substantially circular conveyor track. The track on which the printed products are stored is provided with at least one opening for discharging the lowermost layer.